

I pay a monthly fee for XM Satellite radio because they provide a level of quality and variety that is sadly lacking from commercial broadcast radio. XM's recently-added traffic and weather service is unique because of its immediacy and the availability of reports in other cities. The satellite operators should be free to explore programming styles that find wider audiences.

John Corrigan